

HELLO!

NUMBER 303 • MARCH 23, 2004 • £1.95

'I'm very ambitious and have wasted nine years of my life working just to take it easy. One day I'd like to get married and have children, but it's not something I'm thinking about at the moment.'

jetting off to exotic locations and luxury. So far Jenni has visited South Africa, Thailand, Hong Kong and Paris for the show, which goes on every Sunday evenings.

Each week Jenni, "the dolly wife" co-presenter Dominic "budget" and I explore a popular holiday destination on different budgets. "I landed the budget," Jenni admits. "I have up to five times the budget to throw wildly at nice restaurants."

Next month they sample a weekend in London with Jenni enjoying a luxury three-star hotel - the chic Trafalgar Hilton hotel - Hotel - overlooking Trafalgar Square. For Jenni it was the perfect place to be a tourist in the city where she lives.

"I went to the London Dungeon, which I visited before, and also to the theatre to see The King and I. The weekend made such a difference that since filming I've gone to London a lot more. I went with Jodie to the Portrait Gallery. We've been out for walks along the river, which I've done before."

Ironically, the cheery presenter has spent her holiday for more than two years on the show, her holiday time from GMTV to Hello!

"My holiday is filming a holiday show," she quips, "but I'm not complaining and I wouldn't have wasted the last few years just to take it easy now. One day I'd like to get married and have children, but it's not something I'm thinking about at the moment."

"Last year was the best year of my life because of reasons and I just want to keep it that way."

She's voted Scotland's most eligible woman, Jenni has been dating actor James McAvoy (right) for five months. With a hectic schedule Jenni takes every chance she can to spend a few precious hours with the Cutting It star.

...e. "He was always teasing me on the show about being single and being stuck," says Jenni. "I found it quite entertaining, particularly when they linked me with someone interesting and fit, but often they're simply my friends. Mark and I used to text each other: 'Hello, wife, how are you doing?' 'All right, holiday shows, GMTV signed her up for its HELLO!-sponsored Friday showbiz programme.

"I was rubbish to start with," acknowledges Jenni, "but I really do love it now. Imagine interviewing your favourite pop stars, actors and TV personalities. I've met Clint Eastwood, Johnny Depp and Justin
